Jonathan Adler

Jonathan's love for design took shape in a pottery class at summer camp when he was 12. As an adult, he found his way back to the potter's wheel, where he began crafting his now famous striped pots for Barney's in the '90s. From there, his line quickly expanded into interiors, including everything from mod chrome lighting to cheeky needlepoint accessories. Known for: his "happy chic" design motto and groovy aesthetic—it's a sort of country club meets psychedelia.
