SPOTLIGHT

In 2006, Jennifer Damiano hit the Great White Way with Spring Awakening. Two years later she earned a Tony nod for Next to Normal. Now nineteen, the leading lady will fly high opposite rocker Reeve Carney as Peter Parker's love, Mary Jane, in the musical Spider-Man Turn Off the Dark. Featuring a score by U2's Bono and The Edge and directed by Julie Taymor, the show brings Broadway to new heights—literally. "When I'm suspended in the air at rehearsal, it's scary but pretty awesome," Jennifer says. "I think, There's nothing I would rather be nervous about than this."

TV

Double your dose of scandal this season, courtesy of Sara Shepard.

The author, who wrote the Pretty Little Liars books, will grace shelves again this winter with the brand-new series The Lying Game. The projected four-part set already has ABC Family eager to transport the story line to the small screen. "However it works out, I'd love to see it on television," Shepard says.

BOOKS

When it comes to decorating, don't be afraid of Colors and Accessorizing, the first two titles from design guru Jonathan Adler's new series, Happy Chic. Equipped with checklists and built-in workbook pages to boost your interior-style savvy—plus Adler's signature tips, tricks, and witty commentary—these guidebooks help lead the way to finding your happy place.

TREND

This month cult-classic stationery line Kenzie Kate goes beyond custom invites to bring its paper design to the masses. The lacquered box—available in bright yellow or subdued navy—is filled with 50 note cards on 100% recycled paper in ten tricked-out patterns: the perfect way to say "thank you" with style.

GADGETS

Sick of playing "Can you hear me now?" Transform your cell with the POP phone old-school handset. Then go back to the future with DJ Speaker: Blast your favorite tunes—mixing in effects like vinyl scratching and sirens—on your personal turntable. □
